SUBMISSION

1. In this case, all four Accused have notified their intention to appeal the Closing Order.¹ Further, the Pre-Trial Chamber has permitted Ieng Sary to file his appeal brief in no more than one hundred and eighty pages.² While doing so, the Chamber recognized that the “complexity” of the multiple jurisdictional issues identified by Ieng Sary in the Closing Order constituted an “exceptional circumstance” to warrant this extension.³ The Chamber noted that the Co-Prosecutors “would be given the same opportunity” if they were to seek an extension of the page limit. According to the Chamber, this would provide it “with sufficient material to consider all the issues raised appropriately.”⁴

2. The Co-Prosecutors have examined the Closing Order and the proposed grounds of appeal of Ieng Sary. They have has been unable to determine on what grounds the other Accused are challenging the Closing Order as this information has not been provided in their notices of appeal. However, having considered the nature, extent and length of their likely procedural and substantive responses to the grounds raised by Ieng Sary and taking into account that the other three Accused’s grounds may be connected to those grounds it is submitted it would be in the interests of justice to file a joint response to all the defence appeals against the common Closing Order.

3. This will ensure integrity of argument and a judicious utilization of the limited time to respond, particularly considering the finite and over-stretched translation resources in the Office of the Co-Prosecutors (“OCP”) and the Court Management Section (“CMS”). On a number of occasions in the past, the Pre-Trial Chamber has accepted joint responses of the Co-Prosecutors to different appeals against common impugned orders.⁵ This is another such case.

¹ Nuon Chea (notice of appeal notified on 23 September 2010); Khieu Samphan (PTC-104, notice of appeal notified on 23 September 2010); Ieng Thirith (notice of appeal notified on 20 September 2010); Ieng Sary (PTC-75, notice of appeal notified on 20 September 2010). The appeals of Ieng Thirith and Nuon Chea remain un-numbered.

⁴ PTC Ieng Sary Page Limit Extension Decision, para. 11.

⁵ See, e.g., Decision on the Co-Prosecutors’ Application for Extension of Time and Page Limit to File a Joint Response to Ieng Thirith, Khieu Samphan, Ieng Sary and Certain Civil Parties’ Appeals Against the Order on Joint Criminal Enterprise, Appeal No. 002/19-09-2007/ECCC/OCIJ (PTC 35, 37, 38, 39), Pre-Trial Chamber, 9 February 2010, p. 4. Similar filings were accepted in respect of the appeals on (1) shared materials drive (“SMD”), (2) evidence allegedly obtained under torture, and (3) the appeals on the issue of the alleged administrative corruption at the ECCC.

4. As recognized by the Pre-Trial Chamber, the Co-Prosecutors would require a page limit equivalent to the number of pages utilized by the four Accused in filing their appeals. Although the appeals have not yet been filed, the Co-Prosecutors consider that this request is not “premature”⁶ as an order granting them the extension of page limit in advance will assist them in the preparation and management of the filing of their joint response brief. In making this request for an advance grant of the extension of page limit, the Co-Prosecutors are cognizant that (1) the Pre-Trial Chamber has a short period of four months from the Closing Order to conclude these appeal proceedings, (2) the Co-Prosecutors have only fifteen days to respond to the appeals including the time for translation, and (3) the translation capacity of the OCP and the CMS are severely stretched, a fact also recognized by the Pre-Trial Chamber.⁷

5. The Co-Prosecutors are not in a position to project whether they will be in a position to file their proposed joint response in the available fifteen-day period. This estimation will be determined by the scope and length of the four Accused’s appeal briefs and the capacity of the CMS to translate a lengthy appeal response within a few days. The Co-Prosecutors will, if appropriate, request the Pre-Trial Chamber for an extension of the time limit immediately after the receipt of the briefs. At the current stage, however, they request that the Pre-Trial Chamber order that the time period to file a joint response to the appeal briefs commence from the day the Co-Prosecutors have received all the Accused appeal briefs in English and Khmer.

⁶ Decision on Co-Prosecutors’ Application for Extension of Time Limit to File Their Response, Appeal No. 002/19-09-2007/ECCC/OCIJ (PTC 26), Pre-Trial Chamber, 4 September 2009, para. 3.

CONCLUSION

6. The Co-Prosecutors, therefore, request that the Pre-Trial Chamber (1) permit them to file a joint response to all the proposed defence appeals against the Closing Order, (2) grant an extension of page limit equal to the combined number of pages of all the defence appeals,⁸ and (3) order the time period to file a joint response to commence from the day the Co-Prosecutors have received all four appeal briefs in English and Khmer.⁹
